

An aerial photograph of a rural landscape featuring a mix of green fields and brown, wooded areas. A prominent blue line is drawn across the map, defining an irregular boundary. The line starts in the upper right, moves generally westward with several north-south adjustments, then turns south and east, ending near the bottom center. The terrain is uneven, with various shades of green and brown indicating different land uses or vegetation. Some straight lines, possibly roads or property boundaries, are visible in the background.
